Dear Parents,

You certainly are aware that the education board has issued orders to reduce the school syllabus by about 30%. We feel that such reduction in syllabus would only reduce the extent of learning English language by our children, especially since English is not spoken widely outside of school or at home.

In our endeavour to enhance the learning skills of our students, we are working on a special program for improving the reading, speaking, writing and understanding skills of the English language.

Towards this end, the school has developed a special academic programme with a view to creating additional interest among the children in reading and participating in their academic work.

In order to achieve this objective, we have selected works of very famous authors of child fiction, known for their language skills and engrossing storytelling method and have created an action plan to be implemented as part of learning.

This extensive programme envisages that children will learn the usage of language, appropriate grammar and vocabulary used in decent common parlance, be able to reproduce the subject matter content in their own words and improve their writing skills as a natural progression.

This pedagogy is expected to expedite the language learning skills among children and thereby enhance their English language skills as compared to the text book style.

Most of all, because we would not be testing the children in the normal text book style, students' progress would be assessed by their participation in various activities.

This is for your information and necessary understanding that the entire programme was designed at a huge effort on the part of the English Department and cost, only for the benefit of our students.

The program will be for 3-4 weeks and we would appreciate your feedback at the PTMs.

Thanking You.

Regards

Principal,

JHPS
